YouTube Content Ideas

Three video ideas synthesised by the agent from the rest of this PDF, engineered to plausibly hit 10M views. Each ships with a hook, a thumbnail concept, and a 5-beat outline you can shoot the same week.

1. The US Just Banned Claude - Here's Why

HOOK (FIRST 8S)

The US government just blocked foreign nationals from using Anthropic's newest AI model. Here's the real reason - and it's not what they're telling you.

Why it hits 10M: ['Pulls from anthropic_claude_news - a live US-government-vs-Anthropic export-control fight with daily new developments.', 'Geopolitics + AI access is a topic with built-in global search demand (passport-gates-your-AI framing already trending per ai_search_trends).', 'Explainer format on a controversial policy story consistently outperforms generic 'AI news roundup' content.']

Thumbnail: Split image: a passport stamped 'DENIED' next to the Claude logo, bold red text 'BANNED'.

- 0:00 Hook - 'The US just banned an AI model from foreign users.'
- 0:25 What Claude Fable 5 / Mythos 5 actually are and why they're controversial.
- 1:30 The real timeline: export curbs, the White House meeting, Anthropic's pushback.
- 3:30 Why TechCrunch says this was never really about a 'jailbreak'.
- 5:00 What this means for every other AI lab next - and a subscribe CTA.

2. Why AI Is Quietly Bankrupting Companies

HOOK (FIRST 8S)

Companies are burning six figures a month on AI tokens and nobody saw it coming. This is the hidden cost no one talks about.

Why it hits 10M: ["Pulls from ai_business_automation - Wired's 'tokenomics' story is a relatable pain point for any business using AI at scale.", "Turns a budgeting/ops story into a tangible 'this could be you' narrative, which travels well outside the AI-niche audience.", 'Doubles as a lead-gen video for an AI-automation cost-audit service - strong call-to-action fit for a teaching channel.']

Thumbnail: A bill/invoice graphic with a skyrocketing red line labeled 'AI TOKENS', shocked-face reaction inset.

- 0:00 Hook - 'This company's AI bill went from $200 to $40,000 a month.'
- 0:30 What 'tokenomics' means in plain English.
- 1:30 Real cases: the Silicon Valley software firm and the ecommerce company from the Wired story.
- 3:00 The 3 fixes companies are using: open-source models, SLMs, inference-layer startups.
- 4:30 How to audit your own AI costs today + subscribe CTA.

3. I Got an AI Job With Zero Experience

HOOK (FIRST 8S)

No degree. No experience. Just AI agents and a portfolio. Here's exactly how I'd land a remote AI-automation job this month.

Why it hits 10M: ["Pulls from remote_jobs + ai_search_trends - 'what is ai automation' and 'what is ai agents' are both currently rising search queries.", "Directly serves the channel's stated audience: people trying to break into AI-automation work with no prior experience.", "Tutorial + proof-of-concept structure ('here's the exact portfolio') is the highest-retention format for career-content AI channels."]

Thumbnail: Before/after split: empty resume on the left, a portfolio dashboard of AI agent demos on the right, bold text 'ZERO TO HIRED'.

- 0:00 Hook - 'I have zero experience and I'm about to show you how to get hired anyway.'
- 0:30 What companies actually mean by 'AI automation' roles right now.
- 1:30 Building 3 portfolio demos using n8n / Voiceflow / Claude Code, live.
- 4:00 Where to apply: worldwide-remote boards that don't require a degree.
- 5:30 The exact application message that gets replies + subscribe CTA.

'Pretty Crazy' Token Usage Is Testing Bosses' Bet on AI

QUICK TAKE

Wired profiles a Silicon Valley software company and an ecommerce firm both grappling with 'tokenomics' - unpredictable, sometimes shocking LLM compute costs as AI gets embedded deeper into daily operations. It's becoming a real budgeting problem, not just an engineering one. Automation angle: Cost-monitoring/token-budgeting dashboards for AI-heavy teams are an underbuilt niche - a lightweight tracker is a buildable portfolio project.

Malaysia's AI agent-powered messaging app Respond.io raises $62.5M, eyes acquisitions

QUICK TAKE

Respond.io uses AI agents to handle high volumes of customer inquiries and charges per conversation rather than per seat, a pricing model increasingly common in AI-automation tooling. The $62.5M raise will fund acquisitions in North America and Europe. Automation angle: Per-conversation pricing for AI customer-support agents is the model to study if you're pitching an automation SaaS.

Berlin court rules Google's AI Overviews are just a new search format, not original content

QUICK TAKE

A Berlin court ruled that Google's AI Overviews are simply a new search-result format, not original content, rejecting a perfume company's claim that Google exerted 'decisive influence' over the summaries. The decision is a win for Google's legal position that AI-generated summaries don't carry separate publisher liability in Germany. Unaddressed AI Problems

Real problems in AI that nobody is solving - gaps & unmet needs.

Probably raises $9M to build a more reliable kind of AI

QUICK TAKE

Hallucinations and factual errors reaching end users remain unsolved at production scale - startup Probably raised $9M specifically to chase deterministic-system-level accuracy, a problem most labs still treat as 'good enough' rather than fixed. Who's affected: any team shipping LLM output directly to customers without a verification layer. Why it's still open: there's no general-purpose, cheap way to verify arbitrary LLM claims in real time.

Critical Copilot vulnerability allowed hackers to steal 2FA code from users

QUICK TAKE

A vulnerability dubbed 'SearchLeak' let attackers extract 2FA codes from users through Copilot, showing that LLM-integrated assistants keep reopening the same class of data-exfiltration bug. Who's affected: any enterprise rolling out AI copilots with access to authenticated sessions or sensitive search results. Why it's still open: prompt-injection-adjacent exfiltration paths keep recurring because the industry patches instances, not the underlying pattern.

The US government's Anthropic models ban was never about an AI jailbreak

QUICK TAKE

TechCrunch argues the real story behind the US government forcing Anthropic to pull Fable 5/Mythos 5 access isn't a jailbreak exploit - it's that AI policy enforcement is reactionary and inconsistent, leaving labs unable to predict what triggers a ban. Who's affected: any AI company operating near the edge of frontier capability and government scrutiny. Why it's still open: there's no published, stable rulebook for what capability level triggers export action - each case is litigated after the fact.

South Park Commons backed Maya Research wants to build a voice interface that speaks like a local

QUICK TAKE

Maya Research is building conversational AI that speaks and responds like a native speaker across languages and dialects, targeting the next 4-5 billion internet users who aren't well served by English-first models. Startable angle: voice-localization layers (slang, code-switching, regional accents) for existing LLMs are still thin - a wrapper product selling per-locale voice tuning to SaaS companies expanding into emerging markets is a concrete wedge. QUICK TAKE ContraVault AI raised $3.1M to grow its AI-driven bid-management platform, adding computer vision for tender analysis, and is using the round to expand into the US. Startable angle: vertical 'AI co-pilot for RFPs/bids' tools are still rare outside a few categories - picking one underserved vertical (construction, government contracting, logistics) and cloning this approach is a realistic first product. The Atlantic identified four large music datasets - holding millions of tracks - circulating within the AI-developer community, raising fresh questions about whether the underlying recordings were licensed for AI training.
